

Reynaldo David Immanuel is a member of the dispute resolution practice group assigned in assisting wide range of national and multinational clients from various sectors such as manufacturing, mining industry, utilities and energy and telecommunication.

He graduated and obtained his bachelor's degree from Padjadjaran University in January 2016 majoring in Business Law. During his time in law school, he actively participated in numerous organizations, seminars, trainings courses and events. He was an active member of Asian Law Student Association (ALSA) and also delegates of Padjajaran University for National Moot Court Competition (Piala Mahkamah Agung) at Jember University in 2014, where his team made it to the top 4.

Before joining Lubis, Santosa & Maramis, he worked as an Intern at another premier law firm in Indonesia, working mostly in Loan Transaction and M&A matters, during which time he gained experience in assisting due diligence for one of the largest broadcasting companies in Indonesia.

During his spare time he is a keen football player. Reynaldo speaks Bahasa Indonesia and English.